

Published based on Is there a way to stop third parties from checking your credit history?

Is there a way to stop third parties from checking your credit history?

Every time I check my credit score, some "mortgage reporters" agency has ran my credit. Is there a way to stop them?

If they are pulling for promotional purposes and no application was submitted by you, if you recently applied for a mortgage or if you have an existing account with a company, they can pull.

If you want to stop the promotional pulls then you can opt out.
Google FTC Opt Out and do some reading on the Government site about it.

If you have not been mortgage shopping recently and that agency has pulled a hard inquiry instead of a soft inquiry, you can dispute it since they had no permissible purpose (PP) to pull the hard inquiry.
If they continue to place hard inquiries on your reports, without PP, you can sue them for their FCRA violation.

You can also find this article published on Is there a way to stop third parties from checking your credit history?, and on the tag pages credit history, credit score, google ftc opt, hard inquiries, hard inquiry, is there a way to stop third parties from checking your credit history, mortgage reporters, mortgage shopping, soft inquiry, third parties.